Key Problems Forcing Change

The real issue that we find with our prospective clients, is that they have trouble dealing with difficulty in communication, negotiation, and clarity on the supply chain network from end to end, that comes with international logistics. As a result we have found they spend 200-300% larger material costs than they should due to unnecessary large amounts of middle men and monopolised networks which can be circumvented.

We understand that there is difficulty dealing with communicating, facilitating and sourcing products that are of capable providing our clients and organisations we partner with the quality their clientele expect.

- Rising Costs in the Market and Global instability.
- Communicating and Transparency with Chinese Manufacturers to ensure that product quality is ensured.
- Having dealt with manufacturers prior and understanding that there is a solution to their cost needs, but unable to find time to source their products and validate their quality.
- Being able to Legally ensure, quality check, renegotiate pricing over time so they can continue to have best cost, without altering quality and wasting valuable time.
- Warehousing and stocking products, cost effectively overseas so that they can cut down cost further with larger orders and also transparency with shipping time. Effectively making a 3PL process without dealing with high domestic warehouse prices.
- Not having a vast network of high quality manufacturers at their disposal and connections with the Chinese government to help have a stronger ability to negotiate (or even having access or speaking directly to high quality manufacturers).
- With stories from clients we have dealt with who have tried to shift their sourcing to China have given us insight to understand that manufacturers in China. We understand they can go back on exclusive deals, patents, contracts specifying non-competes, having good quality in the first instance, overtime falling off, Random cost rises without reason, delays and the inability to communicate properly.

Our Work is Never Done...

- Even so we are not done, to be the best you need to do things other just cant do. We realized if we drive multiple clients through a single high quality manufacturer which gives us more leverage with the manufacturer monopolizing our own manufacturers in China.
